

Unravelling the Mystery of the Self: Ethics and Consciousness

Can the application of a universal system of ethics - regardless of our beliefs and origins - hold the key to understanding the “self”?

Can our very consciousness be transformed by a genuine concern for humanity and a love for the Truth?

Drawing on the life and work of Ostad Elahi (1895-1974), thinker, jurist and musician, the symposium will challenge us to completely reconsider consciousness and the role ethics plays in expanding our perceptions of reality.

It will explore how we can use the more rational mentality that we all have in our time and the advances in science and technology to help better understand who we are and why we are here.

Our speakers will be:

- Dr. Paul Debell - psychiatrist
- Professor Simon Weightman - orientalist
- Farhad Mechkat - composer
- Dr. Joan La Rovere - intensive care physician

Each will draw on his or her own field of expertise and personal experience to help us begin unravelling the mystery of the “self”.

2 pm - 6 pm (registration at 1:30pm)

11 September 2010

Tickets: £20

RSVP to info@unicityfoundation.org

Complimentary refreshments during interval.

Imperial College London

Lecture Theatre G16,
Sir Alexander Fleming Building,
Exhibition Road, London SW7